

ENSEIGNANT·E·S :

Gabriel Desgranges

Professeur à l'université de Cergy Paris

DESCRIPTION GÉNÉRALE DU COURS :

Financial crisis are a pervasive phenomenon, and they are so numerous that they seem impossible to eliminate through an appropriate organization of financial markets. Financial crisis are of different kinds: Bubbles and crashes on financial markets, currency crisis, Sovereign debt crisis, bankrupts and panics, credit crunches... A few examples illustrate this variety: the South Sea bubble in the XVIIIth century, the debt crisis in Latin America in the 1980s, speculative attacks against the European Monetary System before the euro was created, banking crisis in the US before the creation of the Federal Reserve System in 1913, and, last but not least, the recent subprimes crisis...
